A Dialogue with James Corner

James Corner is the Founding Principal and CEO of James Corner Field Operations, an international landscape architectural and urban design studio based in New York City, San Francisco, London and Shenzhen. He has devoted the past 30 years to advancing the field of urbanism, primarily through his leadership on high-visibility, complex urban projects at Field Operations, as well as through teaching, public speaking and writing. Important public realm design projects include New York's highly-acclaimed High Line; London's South Park at Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park; Santa Monica's Tongva Park; Chicago's Navy Pier; Cleveland's Public Square; Philadelphia's Race Street Pier; Hong Kong's Salisbury Gardens and Avenue of Stars; and Shenzhen's new city of Qianhai.

James led the design for the new Salisbury Garden and the Avenue of Stars. His years long efforts to deliver a tailored response to Hong Kong was culminated by the completion of the Salisbury Garden in December 2017, which has won numerous design awards as well as accolades from its users and stakeholders. The Avenue of Stars will reopen in late January 2019 and it will not only continue being world class destination but it will bring together public, leisure and educational activities that will form a richly interconnected mix of urban life this time.

James's work also has been recognized with the National Design Award; the American Academy of Arts and Letters Award in Architecture; The Daimler-Chrysler Design Excellence Award; and the AA&D Black Pencil Award. His work has been published broadly and exhibited at the New York Museum of Modern Art; the Cooper-Hewitt Design Museum; the National Building Museum; the Royal Academy of Art in London; and the Venice Biennale. His books include The High Line (Phaidon, 2015); The Landscape Imagination (Princeton, 2014), and Taking Measures Across the American Landscape (Yale, 1996).
